Final Research Report

Identification
All SSHRC grant holders are required to report on what has been accomplished with the funding provided to them. Final Research Reports or Final Productivity Reports must be submitted within six months of the termination date of the grant.
Final Research Reports may be used by SSHRC to promote its funded research and knowledge transfer, to enhance accountability, to demonstrate research results and outcomes of grants, to assess client satisfaction and to provide input for program evaluations.

Research Findings Summary

Summarize your research results and their general significance in one page or less (300-500 words). Use plain, non-technical language. Describe how the research evolved from the objectives set out in your original project proposal and, where possible, explain the significance to Canadians. SSHRC Public Affairs may wish to use this summary for promotional purposes; they will contact you before doing so.

Researchers discovered that each region is different and had unique results. In all four regions, researchers and graduate students used GIS mapping, interviews and focus groups to answer the project's three foundational research questions: 1. What are the needs of women living in rural and northern regions of Canada? Women in rural and northern areas have needs similar to those in urban areas; 2. What are the barriers that women face in meeting these needs? IPV is situated in a context that includes cultural attitudes towards violence, the legacy of colonization and poverty. Across the four regions, geography, transportation, and communication are three of the problems in rural and northern communities that are not seen in urban areas; 3. How do we create and sustain non-violent communities in these regions? Education, especially for children and youth, was found to be the primary requirement needed to foster healthy communities.

In ALBERTA, principal findings provide an understanding of intimate partner violence (IPV) community response that meets the needs of women in four areas: protective factors that harness personal and external resources; informal supports that include family, friends, and community members drawn from cultural, faith-based, and business organizations; formal services that leverage professional services across communities; and contextual influences that reveal how sub-population diversity, environment, and geography affect the daily life of women in rural and northern Alberta.

In MANITOBA, although services and supports have been developed for women who experience intimate partner violence, the needs of many women who live in rural and northern areas are not adequately met. Under these circumstances women "make do" by seeking safety with whatever means are available to them. The current response to intimate partner violence is primarily reactive rather than proactive and there is multi-system involvement without recognition of the whole. Strategies used to seek safety from violence are influenced by the unique context of rural and northern communities. This context includes (a) remoteness and isolation; (b) community politics; (c) lack of housing; (d) lack of/limitations of services and resources; and (e) lack of transportation.

Although the NORTHWEST TERRITORIES reports violence against women nine times higher than the national average, there is little knowledge about family violence. In this study, the researchers explicated a grounded theory entitled "Our Hands are Tied" as the central problem in the community response to intimate partner violence. Three processes were identified: putting up with violence, shutting up about violence, and getting on with life. An action plan to address these issues includes knowledge mobilization, education, assessment and screening, a coordinated response, and community healing.

In SASKATCHEWAN, the research project determined that family violence is generational and therefore services need to target the entire family and from an early age. There are no non-legal responses to family violence, and the patriarchal model of the family has meant the sufferer faces homelessness and poverty. Suggestions to mitigate these challenges include removing the perpetrator from home and community rather than the sufferer, and providing local safe houses and cool-off houses.

Success/Hindrane Factors

Indicate whether the following factors contributed or caused difficulties in achieving your research.

Success Factors - Indicate and rank up to 3 factors that contributed most to the success of your research.

Rank	Factor
1	Partner involvement
2	Team collaboration
3	SSHRC Funding

List any additional factors that facilitated your research.

In-kind support of universities and not for profit organizations

Hindrane Factors - Indicate and rank up to 3 factors that most hindered your research.

Rank	Factor
1	Release time (i.e. employment)
2	Availability of/access to data
3

List any additional difficulties you confronted in your research.

Collaborating with police services was problematic at first

Final Research Report

Impacts
Assess - as well as you can under present circumstances - the current and/or potential impacts of the research on which you are reporting. Answer the questions below using the response scale provided.
In which one of the following areas will your research have the most impact?	Development of policies and programs
Will your research have an impact on our understanding of culture (broadly understood), e.g., of literature, art, history, anthropology, cultural criticism, etc.?	Possibly
Will your research have an impact on our understanding of social issues and social development?	Definitely
Will your research have an impact on our understanding of economic development, policies or practices?	Definitely
Will your research have an impact on public policy debate?	Definitely
Will your research have an impact on teaching (e.g., development of new courses) or professional practice?	Definitely
Will your research have an impact on the development of new research methodologies?	Possibly
Will your research have an impact in other disciplines?	Definitely
Will your research have an impact on international collaboration?	Not applicable
Have your research findings been disseminated to an academic audience?	Definitely
Have your research findings been disseminated to decision-makers in the public, private and not-for-profit sectors?	Definitely
Have your research findings been disseminated to the general public?	Definitely
Have your research findings for this project contributed to – or will it contribute to – enhancing accessible research infrastructure (e.g., collections of materials, Web sites, data bases, networks, etc.)?	Possibly
Please add any further comments or examples on current impacts of the research on which you are reporting.
The project included community partners from shelters, health centres, nursing stations, women's and family centres, child and family services, counselling and outreach centres, Victim Services, addictions, mental health and the RCMP. Working with front line workers from these services in the collection of data, we have presented our results at RESOLVE Research Days and directly with services.
